

Monday Amazing Art - Week 5

11/7/16

Using a new Page in your sketchbook Let's Describe this work of art!

Describe the COLORS, LINES, SHAPES, AND SPACES you see.

Artists commonly use repetition and variation, like Magritte did in Golconda. American Pop artist Andy Warhol repeats the same image nine times on nine separate canvases in his 1966 Self-Portrait. Unlike Magritte, who painted his canvases by hand, Warhol created each of these portraits using a process called silkscreening. In silkscreening, the artist creates a special stencil that can be used more than once. The result is a set of identical prints. But Warhol also uses variation by selection a different combination of bright colors for each canvas. He then arranges the canvases in a grid.
